Jet Plane Over City

10:50 at Logan Airport

This picture of Capt. Brown was taken as he handed Boston American reporter, Jim McEnaney, the plate of the picture above. It marks the first time in history a jet plane has been used for news photo transmission.

The flight from Niagara Falls to Boston required 1 hour 25 minutes, but Capt. Brown was forced to circle the airport for 15 minutes before landing. Thirty minutes after the plane landed, the picture was in this newspaper.

4 Cities Hit in Peak Raid of 800 B-29s

By Associated Press

A record aerial armada of 800 Superforts carrying 6000 tons of incendiary and high explosive bombs—probably the greatest bomb load ever carried in a single mission—executed the sentence of death by fire on four Jap cities today. Tak-ing off from Marianas bases on the 38th anniversary of the American Air Forces, the giant bombers struck savagely in darkness at the war centers of Mito, Hachioji, Nagaoka, Toyama, all on Honshu, and petroleum installations at Kawasaki near Tokyo.

This greatest of all bombing missions came barely 24 hours after more than 1,000,000 Japs were warned to evacuate 12 cities or be destroyed.

All four cities are important transportation centers with a total population of 240,000.

The raid wa sannounced in the first communique issued by the U. S. Army Strategic Air Forces in the Pacific, under command of Gen. Spaatz. It was the last foray planned by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay as commander of the 20th Air Force before becoming chief of staff to Spaatz.

The take-off came nine months to a day after the Superfort "Tokyo Rose" made the first flight over Tokyo.

Most of the targets were in the Tokyo area, with Hachioji only 23 miles west of the Imperial Palace and Mito but 60 miles to the northeast of Tokyo.

The highest previous number of Superforts in a singl emission was 625. It is believed today's was the greatest tonnage ever loosed on a single mission, with each Superforts carrying seven and a half bomb tons. The 6000 ton total would be a load of approximately 2000 of the Flying Fortresses used over Europe.

Targets in the Kawasaki petroleum center, already hard hit in previous raids, included the Mitsubishi, Hayama, Asaihi and Aikoku plants.

The communique said the raid occurred in the early hours of Aug. 2, Guam time (Aug. 1, U. S. time.)

Toyama, population 128,000, is third largest city on the Jap seacoast on the island of Honshu. The city is about 140 miles north of Nagoya and, in addition to having Japan's largest aluminum plant, has ball-bearing, special steel, precision instrument and chemical industries.

Mito, population 66,000, is 60 miles northeast of Tokyo in a rich farming area, and is an important transportation center with freight yards and rail repair facilities for the Joban railroad, now overloaded with supplies for Tokyo brought in through northern mainland ports.

Hachioji, a city of 62,000 in a mountainous area about 23 miles west of the Imperial Palace and half-way between Okyo and Mount Fuji, is an important rail city and a dense housing center.

Nagaoka is about 10 miles inland from the Japan sea coastline and about 20 miles south of Niigata. It has 67,000 population and is a center of machine tool production.

Unprecedented American sea and air power knocked out 1546 Jap vessels and more than 1330 planes in the Mikado's front yard during July and promised to reach new heights this month with flights of 1200 Superforts packing the 8000-ton bomb loads.

Even the enemy's imperial headquarters admitted "damages to cities, factories and shipping were considerable" as Premier Suzuki reported today to Emperor Hirohito on "affairs of state."

The imperial communique promised preparations were being made to meet an invasion. But there was so little sign of fight that Asociated Press Correspondent Richard K. O'Malley, with our fleet, commented:

"Japan seems to be waging a sitdown war."

Terror Sweeps Japan As Devastation Mounts

GUAM, Aug. 1 (AP)—The terror of life in a land writhing and burning beneath the greatest bombardment of all times is reflected fully in Japanese propaganda broadcasts, becoming daily more tense as B-29 and Navy attacks mount in fury.

"We are enduring the impossible, with grinding teeth and clenched fist, when we see enemy planes penetrating our homeland and proudly flying over our heads," cry the Nipponese propagandists.

The horror that there must be today in once-proud Tokyo is apparent in another broadcast which described matter-of factly how the great majority of remaining Tokyo residents, living underground, "desire to be provided with the minimum amount of ground and services necessary for subsistence."

A picture of thousands of injured hovering in dark underground shelters doubtless prompted the broadcasters to add: "Other goods of which they are in great need are medicines essential to the maintenance of life in air-raid shelters."

Japan's battlefront soldiers now are fighting an easier war than the homefolks, another broadcast reveals: "It is soldiers in the front lines that are sending comfort bags to folks at home. 'Hold that line, mother' is the battle cry of every Japanese soldier."

One propagandist acknowledged that "today destruction is even greater than at the time of the great earthquake, and destruction is not confined to one blow but continues to mount in extent."

Another broadcast was intended to be funny—but the grim plight of Japan was clearly drawn.

"A night packed with burning had ended," it said, "and groups of war victims assembled on the school grounds," when a magician attempted to lift their spirits by his tricks. He produced six eggs out of the air—but the people began to beg for the eggs, and he had to explain that they weren't real.

And fear of a complete communications break-down was obvious when one announcer in a program beamed for Japanese consumption urged his listeners: "When there is fear of losing your telephone in flames in an air raid, it is requested that the subscriber take the telephone out himself."

Find $8,500,000

MANILA, Aug. 1 (INS)—Army and Navy divers are recovering a treasure of $8,500,000 in silver coins from Manila bay.

The huge mass of coins—weighing 240 tons—was dropped into 110 feet of water in Manila bay to avoid seizure by the Japs just before the fall of Corregidor in 1942.

Records of the exact location of the silver hoard were lost and 2 Lt. Tore Anderson, Kearny, N. J., was flown from Ft. Belvoir, Va., with a special mine-detecting device which located the treasure.

Big 3 Parley Ends; British Wait Truman

By DANIEL DE LUCE

POTSDAM, Aug. 1 (AP)—The Big Three came to the end early tonight of their historic sessions upon which the future peace of the world may possibly hinge.

No press representatives were permitted to see the ceremonious conclusion of the parley. A negative reply was given to correspondents' letters to each of the Big Three asking press conferences with them or the heads of their foreign ministries.

It was indicated the final communique would be issued Friday, one day after all the delegations had departed from Potsdam, with a simultaneous release scheduled in Washington, London and Moscow.

President Truman will fly to England and meet with King George VI tomorrow aboard the 32,000-ton British cruiser Renown somewhere off Plymouth. This will be the second visit of a President of the Unifed States to England, President Wilson went to Britain after the first World War.

Laski Sees 'Era of Common Man' in British Election

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP)—Prof. Harold J. Laski, chairman of the Labor party's national executive committee, proclaimed today "the era of the common man" in Britain. He said labor's sweeping victory in the general election held as much economic and social significance as the emergence of the middle class in England in the 1830's.

"This is the arrival of the people in power," Laski stated. "We are now prepared to give the little man—within the framework of the British constitution—all the progressive change that he requires."

Laski heads the policymaking body of the Labor party. On foreign policy, he said:

"Our first great task is the utter defeat of the Japanese. Before the most pressing of our domestic problems we intend to fulfill our maximum obligations in the Far East."

With particular reference to Spain, he added: "We do not believe democracy and Fascism can live side by side in our interdependent world, and we do not think democracy is compatible with absolute monarchies."

Laski said the Labor party abhorred any system of government "in which a small class, living by privilege, tries to exploit, as in Spain it has exploited for centuries, the mass of the community."

"We believe the masses in any community are entitled to an equal share in the gain as well as in the toil of living," he added.

PVT. PHIL WHELAN has been swamped with letters since his ad in the Ft. McClellan, Ala., camp newspaper asking if some girl wouldn't like to have him name his feet for her. Whelan explained that he couldn't name a plane or a ship for his girl because he was in the infantry—and he used his feet as others used their planes and ships.

Leahy's Letter Praises Petain

By RELMAN MORIN

PARIS, Aug. 1 (AP)—Adm. William D. Leahy, chief of staff to President Truman, expressed the belief that Marshal Petain always acted in the best interests of France in a letter read today at the treason trial of the old soldier.

As read in court, the letter of Leahy, who is attending the Big Three Conference at Potsdam, expressed "high regard" for Petain and said he was unable to appear as a witness because of his position. He had been U. S. Ambassador to the Vichy regime of Marshal Petain until the Germans took over the unoccupied portions of France in November, 1942, when North Africa was invaded.

Leahy's letter, dated July 22, was in reply to Petain's request that he testify.

Leahy said: "You did, on occasion at my request, take action in opposition to the desires of the Axis and favorable to the Allied cause.

"I had then, as I have now, the conviction that your principal concern was the welfare and protection of the helpless people of France.

"However, I must in all honesty repeat my opinion, as expressed to you at the time, that positive refusal to make any concessions to Axis demands, while it might have brought immediate increased hardship to your people, would in the long view have been advantageous to France."

Petain's counsel said Pierre Laval would be summoned.

As Gen. Maxime Weygand returned for further cross examination, bearded Prosecutor Andre Mornet demanded that "we return to the essential facts of the Petain trial" and avoid a repetition of yesterday's session when Weygand, Petain and former Premier Paul Reynaud engaged in bitter recriminations.

Reynaud, resuming his testimony, asserted that Weygand, when asking for an armistice, declered "we must keep the army intact to maintain order within the country.

A murmur of protest swept the audience when Reynaud declared: "Petain and Weygand had the same object—to force France to capitulate. We are in the presence of a general who wanted an armistice at any price."

As Reynaud spoke, Weygand paced up and down, apparently restraining himself with difficulty. When finally allowed to speak, Weygand said:

"Reynaud, at the moment when his feeble shoulders were unable to bear the heavy burden, called on Petain and me. When he disagreed with us, he always had the right to dismiss us. Instead, he resigned. He showed a regrettable lack of courage."

As the trial dragged on five jurors began reading newspapers, one started a crossword puzzle, two fell asleep and two more leaned back in their chairs staring at the ceiling.

Face Saving

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1 (AP)—With a straight (if unsaved) face, Japan today changed its ambassador to the Philippines (which it doesn't have anymore) or at least to the islands' puppet government (which has fled somewhere).

Tokyo radio said Ko Ishii, foreign office spokesman at the time of Pearl Harbor, succeeds Shozo Murata as ambassador to the puppet government of Jose P. Laurel, last reported in Japan.

Commons Cheers Churchill

LONDON, Aug. 1 (INS)—Winston Churchill's first visit to Commons since the defeat of his government touched off energetic demonstrations by both Conservatives and Laborites today.

When the former prime minister took a seat on the front opposition bench two Conservatives rose to their feet and cheered and sang, "He a jolly good fellow."

As soon as they finished three Laborites led by the veteran George Griffiths put on a counter demonstration in which they sang the "Red Flag" and gave cheers for the Labor victory.

A short time later Brig. Gen. Clifton Brown was re-elected speaker.

Laval Lodged In Paris Prison

PARIS, Aug. 1 (AP)—Pierre Laval arrived by plane at Le Bourget airfield from the Austrian city of Innsbruck late today and was taken immediately to Fresnes prison.

Bedford Show Marks AAF's 38th Birthday

The U. S. Army Air Forces celebrate their 38th birthday today. In the Pacific area it will probably be a freshly baked Japanese city, decorated with brightly burning factories, while in this country hundreds of Army air fields play host to air-minded Americans, and veteran combat pilots put on special sky stunts.

At the Bedford Army air field, where Gen. Patton landed when he returned to this country after the victory in Europe, and where the first B-29 to be shown in this area was displayed, the "open house" sign has been put out for a four-hour period.

Lt.-Col. Charles L. Wright, commanding officer of the field, has arranged, with the assistance of field's provost marshal, Lt. Harold Novok, a thrilling air show beginning at 4 p. m., to be climaxed at 8 p. m. with demonstrations by heavy bombers in battle formations.

The field is a veritable Noah's Ark of aircraft—with at least one of every type Army fighting plane, including a monster B-29, with a few naval aircraft thrown in for good measure.

Many of the planes are veterans of action in European and Pacific war theaters and most of the pilots and crews are beribboned and bemedalled heroes of the air blitzes against the Germans and Nips.

One of the most sinister-looking airplanes on the field is the aptly-named "Black Widow" fighter, a night fighter, officially known as the P-61.

First Lt. Martin F. O'Toole, 24, of Seattle, Wash., says, "She is a sweet lady, but fast company for any Jap."

Lt. O'Toole is a veteran of 60 missions, flying a B-25 in the North African, Sicily and Italian campaigns.

S-Sgt. Francis B. McGrath, assigned to the provost marshal's office at the field, has a warm spot in his heart for B-25's, as his 45 missions on them won him his American citizenship. Sgt. McGrath, 27, of Saratoga st., East Boston, a native of Cape Breton, N. S., was forced to bail out behind enemy lines when, on his 43rd mission, his ship was knocked out by flak.

Partisans hid him for four months before he was able to make his way back to Allied lines.

The East Boston flier, who is making his most important mission this month—a wedding—wears the air medal with five Oak Leaf Clusters and the ETO ribbon with three battle stars.

Missing Buffalo Boy, 4, Found In Mississippi

MERIDAN, Miss., Aug. 1 (AP)—Chief of Detectives T. D. Arbour said today police had recovered a 4-year-old boy, Peter Watson, who had been reported missing from Buffalo, N Y., since July 3 and the object of a nation-wide search.

Arbour said the boy was found today at a bus station here in the care of a woman Arbour listed as Mrs. Venda Florence Jones, 24. He said Mrs. Jones was being detained pending arrival of Buffalo officers.

Arbour said Mrs. Jones told him the child's mother, Mrs. Evada Watson, 40, Crystal Beach, Ont., had given her custody of the boy for 30 days, about July 1 and that she was preparing to leave for Baltimore with him today.

Arbour said Mrs. Jones told him that she was married yesterday in Monroe, La., to a man she had met several days before in Jackson, Miss.

JET PLANE OVER HUB—The jet propelled P-59 roars over Boston today during a demonstration flight by Capt. John Brown in connection with the celebration of the 38th anniversary of the founding of the Army Air Force.

Jet Plane Thrills Thousands in Hub

Delayed for an hour by slowly lifting fog, the Airacomet P-59 finally took off from Boston Airport at 12:50 p. m. today to give hundreds of thousands of Greater Boston residents a spectacular exhibition of the incredible speed and maneuverability of a jet-propelled plane. Piloted by Capt. John Brown of the Army Air Force and powered with two jet motors built at the Lynn River Works plant of the General Electric Co., the Airacomet roared at a 350-mile-per-hour clip from Niagara Falls, N. Y., in one hour and 25 minutes earlier in the day to assist in Boston's observance of Army Air Force Day.

But for the fog which obscured most of his route—longest nonstop hop he ever had attempted in a jet plane, Capt. Brown said he could have made the trip in a couple of minutes over an hour.

In the plane on the trip from New York was a package of photographic plates—pictures taken before his take off at Niagara Falls—which he turned over on his arrival to a Boston Evening American reporter.

It was a newspaper milestone—the first news photographs in history to be flown into Boston in a jet propelled plane.

Although the low hanging ceiling forced him to circle the airport for almost 15 minutes before his first landing, the banks of fog began to lift shortly after his arrival.

Finally, at 12:50 p. m., one hour later than the scheduled time, Capt. Brown took off from the airport and roared toward Lynn to give General Electric Company workers a chance to see the jet motors they had built in action.

Some 20,000 GE workers and thousands of others in Lynn saw the plane as it went through its paces and stunted above the two company plants and over the downtown section of the city.

Within 10 minutes Capt. Brown roared back over Boston, astounding neck-craning spectators with the incredible swiftness of his craft.

"It moves so fast you can hardly see it," was the repeated comment of watchers from rooftops and windows of high buildings.

Two Army pursuit planes trailed the P-59 as it sped through the skies but Capt. Brown pulled away from them so swiftly that they seemed almost to be anchored in midair.

During his flight over both Lynn and Boston, Capt. Brown executed the plane's spectacular "skyrocket" maneuver, a swift perpendicular climb for thousands of feet with thin streams of vapor trailing from the plane's two jet motors.

As the plane performed over Boston, its progress was reported to the public over the city's public address system so that waiting spectators at various vantage points were continually informed of its whereabouts.

While the plane was making its trip to Lynn, Mayor Kerrigan spoke over the address system, saying:

"Today, on the 38th anniversary of the founding of the Army Air Corps, we pause to pay tribute to the ingenuity and skill of the inventive genius of the American mind.

"On Aug. 1, 1907, the Army Air Corps with one officer and two men came into existence. In a short period of 38 years, we can truly marvel at the accomplishments and strides our Air Corps has made in the advancement of aviation.

Within a few moments a jet propelled plane will be seen in its first flight over Boston.

"I can't help but think our America has been free from the terror of bombings and invasion because Americans have developed in all fields of science, to the utmost, the facilities at hand.

"I call on all citizens to view with me today's flight of the Aircomet over Boston and to remember while viewing it that American progress has made possible the security, safety and prosperity of our United States."

MAYOR JOHN E. KERRIGAN
Speaks on Air Force Day
INP by Harry Simard

After his flight, Capt. Brown landed at the airport at 1:20 p. m. and was the guest of honor at a buffet luncheon and reception arranged by a committee of military, naval and civic leaders of Boston and Lynn, headed by GE Vice-President Thomas V. Knight.

A large throng had gathered at the airport, anxious to see the jet plane taking off and landing and for a close-up of the speedy craft, when it was placed on public exhibition at 2 p. m.

Capt. Brown reported the flying conditions were excellent after the fog lifted, considerably different from the thick weather which greeted him when he first reached Boston earlier in the day.

Capt. Brown was forced to circle the airport before he came in and landed, and this last few minutes in the fog nearly exhausted his fuel supply.

"It was pretty foggy when I took off at 9:10 from Niagara Falls," Capt. Brown said. "I took her up to 35,000 feet and it was real sunny up there. You've got plenty of sun up there right now but it's hiding above the fog.

"It was foggy all along the way with an occasional break. When I got to what should have been Worcester, I could see Lake Quinsigamond so I cut one of the motors and started to coast down to Boston.

"I caught sight of one building—your Custom House tower—sticking up through the fog, and I gave it a wide berth.

"It was a long 10 or 15 minutes up there over the airport. I just about squeaked through on the fuel.

"It was the longest nonstop I'd ever made in one of these planes. I've done about 25 hours in them. But for the fog I'd have been here in a couple of minutes over an hour but an hour and 25 minutes isn't too bad when you consider the weather conditions."

His second flight of the day will be from Logan Airport, where he will take off at 4:30 p. m., fly to Bedford Airport and remain 10 minutes for the Air Forces celebration there and then land again at the Boston airport at 5 p. m.

Those who wish to see how the plane generates enough power to take off 30 seconds after its motors are started or to witness how it come in for a landing will find the airport the best point of vantage at 4:30 and 5 p. m.

The jet plane will be on public exhibition at the Airport from 2 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Cyclist-Kidnap Hunt Pressed

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 1 (AP)—Police pressed a search today for 9-year-old Marjorie Wick and a gray-haired man who was believed to have carried her away on the handlebars of a bicycle last Wednesday.

The man, Buffalo Detective Thomas Riordan disclosed yesterday, had been a frequent visitor at the home of John Wick, Marjorie's father, and had promised the family a $110,000 legacy from an "uncle in Utica."

The family trusted the man to the extent it did not report the child missing until two days after her disappearance, Riordan said, and even then told police:

"He's a good man; he'll bring her back all right."

Riordan said a search of the man's rooming house revealed he had been checking orphanages in the Buffalo area, searching for the child he said his wife had left in such an institute several years before. The detective theorized it was possible the man thought Marjorie was his own child.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 1 (AP)—Only about 20 per cent of returning New Hampshire war veterans require aid in finding work, Brig.-Gen. Charles F. Bowen, State Selective Service Director, reported today.

Slain Boy's Pals Track Suspect

The identity of the assailant of Nicholas Di Paolo, 15-year-old Malden youth who died in Malden Hospital last night as a result of a severe beating, is known to police and a warrant charging assault and manslaughter will be issued today, according to Acting Capt. Frank Lenehan of the Malden police.

Lenehan said he expected to have the suspect in court tomorrow, but would not say he was a "gang member" of the dead boy's age, many of whom have been questioned by Malden and Everett police.

Capt. Lenehan's announcement came shortly after Medical Examiner Andrew D. Guthrie, in an autopsy report, said the boy had died from an extensive brain injury and fractured skull of about five days' duration.

He denied a fall out of bed in Malden Hospital could have contributed to Di Paolo's death, as alleged, declaring the injury was so severe that death would have occured in any case.

According to police, identification of Di Paolo's attacker resulted from information furnished by the boy's friends, who banded together to get evidence.

Excitement among Di Paola's teen-age friends reached such a pitch last night that a group of youths, armed with sticks and clubs, started a march on an Everett gang known as the "Green Dragons," whom they believed responsible for Di Paolo's death. They were stopped by police.

Police also questioned Ippolito Borsati, 14, who lives across the street on Pearl st. from the boy victim and was with him when he was attacked.

Borsati, unable to identify the assailants, said four youths jumped on Di Paolo and himself from behind as they returned from a community concert on Ferryway Green about a week ago. The attackers concentrated upon Di Paolo but also turned on him, he said.

Di Paolo was knocked down and his head struck on the sidewalk. After the fist battle was over, the two attacked boys went home.

Di Paolo, according to his mother, told her he had been beaten up and felt "sick to his stomach." The next morning he still felt ill, she said, and she took him to Malden Hospital where he died.

First police theory was that Di Paolo may have been mistaken for a member of a Malden gang long feuding with a similar Everett group.

Known members of both gangs were questioned but none admitted being in the neighborhood when the attack occurred.

Police were on guard to prevent any further uprising of Malden youths against Everett gangs.

Wakefield Mother, Son, Drown in Maine

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Aug. 1—A Wakefield, Mass., mother and her 9-year-old son were drowned at Kinny Shores Beach today after the mother strove desperately to save the helpless youngster.

Mrs. W. James Lawthers, 37, of Prospect st., Wakefield, wife of the manager of the policy loan department of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., had gone bathing with Bruce, 4, and her daughter, Anne, 8. While the boy was playing on a sand bar, slightly submerged, a heavy wave rolled in and washed him from his foothold.

Calling to her daughter to summon aid, Mrs. Lawthers plunged into the water in an attempt to bring Bruce ashore but she, too, was thrown from her feet by a wave. Exhausted, she was unable to get to her feet again and was dead when help arrived.

The boy's body was not immediately recovered and members of the Coast Guard were assigned to search for it.

Toy-Pistol Holdup Lands Ware Couple in N. Y. Jail

JOHN P. UNITIS AND MRS. ARLENE KAMINSKI

With only 12 cents between them and prospects of a second night's lodging in a cemetery shed goading them to desperation, a young Ware couple staged an unsuccessful holdup with a toy pistol and ended up in a New York jail today. Mrs. Arlene Kaminski, 20, and John P. Unitis, 21, both employes of a Ware war plant, wanted to be alone together so they went to New York last weekend. But their passion for solitude blinded them to the fact that you have to have money to live.

When their meager bankroll was exhausted and they hac' no place to sleep, they spent a night in a shack in Maple Grove Cemetery, Queens. Resolved not to spend another there, John bought a toy pistol in a five and dime store, entered the home of Mrs. Amelia Lewin in Queens and attempted to hold her up.

Mrs. Lewin, however, with a few well-directed blows put the would-be bandit to rout, summoned police, and watched him carted off to the Queens jail. Arlene, who had waited a block away while her companion was out collecting money for their next night's lodging, was picked up by a police patrol car.

Taking pity on the plight of the young pair, Mrs. Lewin hesitated to press charges, but she was overruled by police.

John begged police to release his sweetheart, insisting that he had bought the pistol and planned the holdup alone, but Magistrate Joseph Glebocki held Mrs. Kaminski in $2000 bail and Unitis without bail for hearing Monday. Both were charged with assault and robbery and violation of the Sullivan law covering illegal possession of a weapon.

Peter Kaminski, the girl's husband, and her mother, Mrs. Ruby Sawyer, fo Gilbertville, were in court for teh hearing. Unitis' sister, Peggy Unitis, was also present.

NO DIVORCE YET—Japs must first bite the dust before Martha O'Driscoll, the screen actress, can press her suit for divorce from her hubby, Navy Com. Richard D. Adams. A Los Angeles judge granted Adams' lawyer a stay until the war ends, because he's too busy on submarines to defend himself.

Nab Fugitive, 16, As Pal Escapes

Police from the Dudley st. station today conducted simultaneous, surprise raids on the homes of two escaped Deer Island House of Correction prisoners and captured one, a 16-year-old youth.

Police missed the second escapee, Stanley Miller, 23, of Cheney st., Roxbury, by only minutes. The youth, serving a 15 months sentence for his part in the theft and forgeries of $12,000 in War Bonds, had discarded his prison garb and fled.

Miller was sentenced with two other youths last June when they pleaded guilty to entering the home of Dr. Clyde Stewart in Jordan rd., Brookline, and taking the war bonds from a hope chest, cashing $1487 of them by using false Social Security cards.

Miller and his 16-year-old companion escaped from Deer Island yesterday in a heavy fog.

Missing So. Boston Father in St. Louis

Missing since July 15, Earl B. Richardson, lobster fisherman and father of 11 small children, turned up today in a hospital in St. Louis, Mo. His wife, Mrs. Eva Richards of Tuckerman st., South Boston, received a letter from her husband today, mailed from St. Luke's Hospital in the midwestern city, asking her to send him $75 and saying that he was coming home.

The letter gave no reason for his sudden disappearance more than two weeks ago nor did it explain why he was in a hospital.

Richards, who lived with his family at the time in Middle st., South Boston, left for work early in the morning last July 15 and was not seen nor heard from since then until today.

When his wife reported his disappearance she was fearful he had met with foul play. During their 15-year marriage he had never before left home without telling her his plans.

Audette is treasure of the Gallie Realty Co., operators of the building.

Pope in Warning To Allied Victors

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 1. (AP)—Msgr. Enrico Pucci's Vatican Press Bulletin said today the Vatican viewed the European military and political situation "with apprehension."

Pope Pius XII, the Bulletin added, is "not losing any opportunities publicity and privately" of emphasizing the Vatican view that victorious nations must not abuse their victory or "forget the just aspirations" of defeated nations.

"It does not seem as if the spirit of the victors, as demonstrated by talks which should prepare the way for future peace, is orientated in the direction recommended by the Pontiff," the Bulletin said.

Extra Cigaret, Liquor Taxes On

Cigarets and liquor became real luxuries today, as Massachusetts citizens began paying the new taxes imposed by the 1945 Legislature to raise $93,000,000, of which $60,000,000 is required to pay the state's servicemen and women a $100 cash bonus, and $33,000,000 to establish a veterans' rehabilitation fund.

Another cent was added to the price of a packaga of cigarets, while the price of hard drinks was boosted in ratio to the added 50-cent tax on a gallon of liquor.

The state tax on cigarets is now four cents, of which the Legislature earmarked two cents for the bonus fund.

Also doubled for one year is the 2½ per cent tax on corporate income of $25,000 or more, estimated to yield at least $17,000,000 of the $93,000,000 total.

Seven Boston policewomen, assigned to "morning patrol" duty—the 12:30 to 8:30 a. m. shift—in an unprecedented police drive on "doorway petting and sidewalk lovemaking" of young girls and sailors, made a report of their first dawn's work today.

They apprehended a 19-year-old North Quincy girl who ran away from her home a week ago and had been reported missing; arrested a 26-year-old Boston girl on a drunkenness charge and gave a 32-year-old Beverly woman, whom they found asleep on a North Station bench, money for breakfast and her railroad fare.

Europe Democracy Finished--Wiegand

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

Written Expressly for the Hearst Newspapers

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 1—All Europe is going Communist or Socialist or a combination of these two ideological, political and economic twins that have the same father.

Germany is defeated, crushed and lying in the very dust and by the order of Stalin is being stripped even of its silver spoons, the wedding rings of the married, the gold or silver circlets of young, engaged couples and down to the gold or silver baby pins on the baby bibs.

All must be surrendered.

But German thought and doctrine, the Communism and Socialism of the German, Karl Marx, is sweeping triumphantly over Euroue and is having a measure of revenge in its wrecking of western ideals and political and economic systems.

The British Socialist Labor landslide in England, the crushing defeat of the Conservatives and the ousting fo Winston Churchill's government is in its effect the greatest, most profound and most significant victory of Socialism, of Communism and of Generalissimo Josef Stalin.

It determines beyond a doubt a Communist and Socialist Europe.

With it the leadership of Western Democracy, as we know democracy, passes definitely and emphatically to America.

If that leadership is not vigorously, forcefully and militantly taken up and exercised with determination and vision, the collapse of the American concept and form of democracy with its free institutions, is only a question of time.

The British elections were a surprise only to those who ignored conditions in Europe and in England and put politics above the human element and its intense suffering and disillusionment.

With Australia and New Zealand having a Socialist Labor Government, the British Empire is now largely a Socialist Empire.

There is consternation in the ever-shrinking circles of Western democracy in Europe.

The repercussion of the overwhelming British Socialist victory is worldwide.

The last "brakes" on the Communist-Socialist movement in the Old World are off; the last barrier to the pink, red tide is down.

The last hope of some democratic circles of a western bloc against Stalin's neo-imperialist hegemony aspirations are gone.

The British Socialist victory will greatly influence the coming elections in France, Belgium and elsewhere.

It spells doom to the hopes of monarchists in Greece, Italy, Belgium, Spain and Austria.

It confirms Stalin as predominant master of the destines of Europe.

"CONTENTED AS A BUNNY"...

We've heard of "contented cows"—but bunnies, ordinarily that's a question of the proper ration of carrots, wouldn't you say? However, be that as it may that's the way Miss Y——— expressed it the other day. "I had been all over town looking for quilted slippers—I wanted printed ones—size 9—that size isn't easy to find—why I didn't come to Filene's Basement in the first place—but I never dreamed they would have printed, quilted slippers—BUT THERE THEY WERE—and was I surprised to find size 9—and all they cost was $1.69." No wonder she was so happy about the whole thing—after the wild-rabbit chase all over town for these slippers (these she had seen elsewhere exclusive of large sizes were $3 and $4), and as she expressed her satisfaction, she put it, "I'm as contented as a bunny with them." Did you know Filene's Basement has a large slipper section with many types of leisure slippers, including scuffs, operas, sandals, sometimes mules and other novelty slippers—that are not only easy on your feet, but the LOW automatic prices are "easy" on your purse—and that spells genuine Contentment in only seven letters—S-A-V-I-N-G-S!

Father Had No Part in Loans, Elliott Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP)—Brig.-Gen. Elliott Roosevelt says anyone who claims the late President Roosevelt "promoted or assisted" his son's business affairs is lying.

Young Roosevelt said in a sharply-worded statement last night he is leaving the air force simply because he does not wish to be an arm-chair general.

He made the decision a month before published reports about his business transactions which led to a congressional investigation, Roosevelt said, adding:

"I conducted my own business affairs. The responsibility was and still is mine and mine alone."

Asserting he had nothing to conceal, the general said he was cooperating with a Treasury investigation of his affairs and had asked the department to "make public all of the facts, without reservation, at the earliest possible moment."

"I am entitled to a full public statement of those facts for the sake of my family," Roosevelt said. His statement was made public by his attorney, Randolph Paul, former general counsel of the Treasury.

It stemmed from a story early in June by columnist Westbrook Pegler that young Roosevelt had borrowed $200,000 in 1939 from John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co.; that the debt was settled three years later for $4000 by Jesse Jones, then Secretary of Commerce, and that Hartford listed his loss as a bad debt on his 1942 income tax return.

Pegler wrote that "President Roosevelt knew of the loan and approved it."

Gen. Roosevelt, who reverts to inactive status Aug. 15, said he filed his retirement request May 11, three days after V-E Day.

Waiting Operation

Tiny Lois Ann Rosen was to undergo a delicate heart operation at Children's Hospital. But now it's been postponed. And for a very good reason. Her daddy's coming home from war.

"I want him to be at Lois Ann's bedside before she is operated on," the 18-month-old child's mother, Mrs. Evelyn Rosen, of Walden st., Roxbury, said. "I had given up hope of his coming. But now I will wait a day or two. The doctors say it's all right. I'm so happy."

Mrs. Rosen was informed by the Red Cross that her soldier-husband, S-Sgt. William M. Rosen, already is on his way home. The Red Cross told her Gen. Eisenhower had given orders for his furlough, ending a month-long effort on her part to obtain his leave.

Army Furloughs 4000 R. R. Men

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP) —John W. Snyder, War Mobilization Director, said today the War Department has arranged for a temporary furlough for 4000 men to the railroad industry.

Snyder said the impression there has been a breakdown in the transportation system is "erroneous." He said the needs for railroad workers are great, but "very real progress" in their recruiting is being made.

The furlough of 4000 former railroad men, together with the Army plans to expedite release of former rail workers from the Army and to move from 25,000 to 30,000 men a month across country by plane, Snyder said, should "ease the strain on the roads and provide needed manpower."

Eastern Mass. In Travel Exhibit

Good old days of horse car and trolley transportation are recalled in a pictoral exhibit in the Congress st. window of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co., depicting public traveling methods from 1860 to 1945.

Trolley trips in preautomobile days frequently carried passengers as far as New York and Portland. A 1916 travel folder issued by the Eastern Massachusetts Company's predecessor featured a trolley trip to New York which consumed 18 hours.

The company, according to A. J. Boardman, vice-president and general manager, now operates more than 800 buses serving 20 cities, 51 towns and an annual passenger total of more than 150,000,000.

Orders have been placed for 336 new stream-lined, air-conditioned buses, he said, but production has been delayed due to government restrictions.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. MCENANEY

Q—Can an Army nurse send home a Class E allotment to her parents? D. S., Athol.

A—Yes, she can. She should file WD AGO Form 29 through her local finance officer.

Q—I had one son killed in action and I receive payments from his government insurance and a pension, but this isn't enough to run my home on. I have another son in the service who wants to get Family Allowance for me. Can I receive this without having the pension and insurance stopped? C. D., Brighton.

A—Family Allowance is paid to the parents, brothers or sisters of a serviceman when the fact of dependency is established. The fact that you receive the insurance and pension would not make you ineligible for the Family Allowance. The insurance payments would not stop regardless of any other income you may receive; the pension is paid because the fact of dependency exists. As this benefit is administered by the Veterans Administration, that agency could advise you as to whether receipt of Family Allowance would bring your total income to an amount whereby the pension would be discontinued.

Q—My husband was killed in action two years ago. I receive pension and insurance. If I take a job will these be discontinued? W. B., Braintree.

A—No, the widow of a veteran is entitled to receive the pension regardless of other incomes and the insurance payments would continue also.

Q—Are adopted children dependents? S. H., Melrose.

A—Yes, if they are legally adopted and unmarried, under 18, and not in the armed services.

Many of these organizations have not been listed as yet by the War Dept. for return immediately. Due to that fact it is impossible to answer a great many questions at this time. However, on another page of this newspaper a column entitled "The Boys Come Home" is published, giving details of units due to sail and those arriving at U. S. ports. Monsanto Co. Asks U. S. Take Over Plant

Charging "flagrant union irresponsibility" in a walkout of 45 pipefitters, which closed its Monsanto, Ill., plant and threw 1200 out of employment, the Monsanto Chemical Co. asked the federal government today to take over operation of the strike-bound factory.

Rain Kills Fish

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 1 (AP)—There's been so much rain that fish are dying in a New Jersey lake. The State game and fish warden explained marine growth was accelerated by the rain and formed a greenish scum. Accompanying hot weather turned this scum into gas which suffocated the fish, he said.

V-Gardeners Told to Start Planting for Fall Crops

By FOSTER H. WEISS

(Head of Vegetable Gardening Department, Norfolk County Agricultural School and Director of the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser Demonstration Garden on Boston Common.)

Having a variety of vegetables for fall use and making the most of these cool weather crops, should motivate the plans of Victory Gardeners for August plantings.

Lettuce is the standard salad crop, but for flavor and crispness try growing a short row of endive for late fall and early winter greens. There are two types, Broad Leaved Batavian or Green Curled. The Batavian seems more popular in this area.

Sow seed from Aug. 1-10 in rows 14 inches apart and then when plants are 3 inches high, thin to stand 12 inches in the row. Endive is ready to use in about 8 weeks, but real heads will form in late October. It will then stand until hard freezing weather occurs. By covering row with leaves or mulch it can then be held well into November. Some gardeners even lift a few plants with as much soil as possible and store in the cool cellar or garage for early winter use.

Another late fall crop for variety is kale. This member of the cabbage family makes excellent greens and should be used more. It can be grown anywhere that cabbage is grown, but prefers cool weather. Planted now it will reach normal size by the middle of October.

This week we are planning to make a planting of Great Lakes lettuce from seed and also another planting of Oak Leaf. These will supply us with fall greens.

Most families do not realize that fall turnips can be grown at home. Make a small planting Aug. 1 and follow with another about Aug. 15. Grown under cool conditions, they are good quality and flavor. The best variety is Purple Top White Globe. Sow seed in rows 14 inches apart and thin to ¾ inch.

"Valley of Decision" Held Over at Loew's

During the current showing of MGM's production of "The Valley of Decision," starring Greer Garson and Gregory Peck, Loew's Orpheum will open at 8:45 a. m. instead of the usual 9:15.

GAGNEY MODERN STAR

The Jimmy Cagney-starring "Blood on the Sun," United Artists' melodrama of an American newspaperman's Tokyo discovery of Japan's Tanaka Plan, is now unreeling on the Modern screen. In quite an opposite mood is "Don Juan Quilligan."

'The Southerner' On Two Screens

"The Southerner," United Artists' saga of a family of Texas cotton farmers caught in a contest with the land and the seasons, opens today on the Old South and Tremont screens.

The distinguished Jean Renoir has directed a cast of first-rate performers headed by Zachary Scott, Betty Scott, J. Carrol Naish and Beulah Bondi.

The unglamorous but frequently poetic story is confined to one strenuous year during which an improverished but ambitious cotton picker climbs the rung to tenant farming. Their nearest neighbor is an embittered, confused man who does his best to frustrate their attempt to better themselves.

There has been high praise from critics and the film-going public for "The Southerner" and the honest, lyrical and rewarding handling of this cinematic Americana.

Featured in the supporting cast are Percy Kilbride, Blanche Yurka, Charles Kemper, Norman Lloyd, Estelle Taylor, Dorothy Granger, Noreen Roth and Jay Gilpin. George Sessions Perry did the script.

New Characters In 'Junior Miss'

Many of the talked-about but never seen characters in the Broadway hit, "Junior Miss," will make their appearance in the screen version which is soon to be seen at the Metropolitan.

Peggy Ann Garner, the youthful actress who has scored in so many recent film roles, will be seen as the tantalizing, romancing, lovable Judy Graves.

In the cinematic adaptation, the frequently mentioned but unseen elevator boy in the Graves apartment building will materialize. The romance between Uncle Willis and Ellen Curtis was also left to the imagination as was the skating scene in Radio City.

Shangri-La Diary

By CPL. MARGARET HASTINGS, WAC

Written Exclusively for International News Special Service (World Copyright and All Rights Reserved)

OWEGO, N.Y., Aug. 1 (INS)—As Lt. McCollom, Sgt. Decker and I smoked our cigarets this Thursday morning, the fourth day after the crash, we were at peace with the world. The natives, who might easily have been head-hunters, stood about and watched us with childish pleasure.

The early perils of Shangri-La were over for WAC Cpl. Margaret Hastings, Lt. John McCollom and Sgt. Kenneth Decker. They had survived the mountainside air crash that killed 21 of their companions, safely reached the floor of the unexplored valley and even made friends with the natives. In radio contact with a search plane by use of a portable set parachuted into the valley, the three relaxed while waiting for their delivery. None realized the new and dread danger ahead of them.

We had just held our first radio conversation with the outside world and nearby were ample supplies, dropped by the Army planes. All we needed was the strength to gather them in.

We sat and puffed and thought of the luscious Spam and K-rations probably awaiting us within a stone's throw.

"There are only two things to eat that I hate," I said dreamily. "One is canned tomatoes and the other is raisins. When I was little I ate myself sick on both and now I can't stand the sight of either."

"I could eat the tomatoes, can and all, if I could get 'em," McCollom declared with fervor, as he hoisted himself up to go look for the supplies.

Now that I am home and have had time to appraise at least part of my experiences, McCollom and Decker constantly loom larger in my eyes. They were both extraordinary men and they behaved always with extraordinary fortitude.

From the first, McCollom assumed leadership of our little expedition. He was an officer, and Decker and I were enlisted personnel. Furthermore, McCollom was unhurt. At least, we thought so. We didn't know until we got out of Shangri-La that he had cracked a rib either in the plane crash or in the descent of the mountain. He doesn't know how it happened, either.

But beyond all that McCollom is a born leader.

I do not think Decker and I, injured as we were, could have survived without him.

I did not realize it then, but I understand very clearly now that on this Thursday, even McCollom had almost reached the end of his rope. Certainly, Decker and I had.

We had had no food except hard candy since Sunday noon, and no sleep since Saturday night. In the four nights since the crash, we had dozed fitfully. But none of us had really slept.

We were too exhausted, too wet and cold, too hurt to sleep on hard ground covered only by a tarpaulin. The tarp over us was inadequate to keep the nightly rains out.

Decker was emaciated, his eyes like burnt holes in a blanket. We knew he was badly hurt, but just how gravely we were not to discover for a few more hours.

How Decker got to his feet I shall never know. But he did, and staggered uncomplainingly after McCollom, determined to do his share of the work.

When they disappeared, I began to worry lest the natives take the boxes of rations I had seen dropping just over the brow of a little knoll beyond us. I decided I had better scout that situation. It was excruciating to stand on my burned, infected legs. So part of the way I crawled on my hands and knees. When my infected hand hurt too much I would sit down and bounce along the ground.

Progress was slow. When I finally got to the other knoll, a split rail fence barred my way. It was a split rail fence just like the pioneers used to build in America! Beyond the fence and below the knoll was the first native compound I ever saw.

It was an odd and fascinating New Guinea housing project, with one large section and several smaller ones mushroomed around it.

The huts were round, with bamboo sides and thatched roofs, and seemed to be at least semi-attached to each other.

As for the roofs—they were alive with natives, all craning their jet black necks for a better look at me.

I could see a large-sized hole in one thatched roof. A hunch and a sinking feeling hit me simultaneously: I knew that one of our packages of supplies had gone through the roof. (I was right, too, McCollom discovered later.)

I wondered if the natives were angry about this, or if they might go on the warpath because one of their houses was damaged. But they just stood and stared entranced by the free show I made.

So I decided to leave well enough alone and get back to my own kind. I crawled back just as McCollom and Decker returned.

Tired as they were, they were grinning like apes. In their hands were cans of the only food they had been able to find. Believe it or not, that food was canned tomatoes!

"Come on, Maggie. Be a big girl and eat some tomatoes," Decker coaxed. I managed to swallow four mouthfuls but no more. I still hate them.

But then we wolfed them down and smacked our lips. And for some obscure reason, it made us mad. I crossly ordered them back in the jungle to find something I could eat.

Poor guys! They went back. They returned eventually with no food but with a half dozen jungle kits containing all kinds of medicine from atabrin to tablets for purifying water.

There was jungle knives, head nets to keep out mosquitoes, triangular bandages, gauze, and even chocolate bars. But this time I was almost as sick of candy as I was of tomatoes.

There were also water bags in the jungle kits. Decker, the indefatigable, who looked as if he would drop at any moment, reeled down to the little stream to fill them.

He was gone so long I began to worry about him.

It took every ounce of his strength to get back to our knoll, and when he reached us he just sagged gently onto the hard earth.

Now that we had collected a few supplies, McCollom said it was time to attend to Decker's and my injuries. He made me roll up my trouser legs, and I know it must have made him as ill as it did me to look at my legs. The bracelet burns around each calf had turned into big, evil-smelling, running sores. My feet were gangrenous, too, and so was my hand.

Decker and McCollom looked at me, and I knew they were alarmed. I was, too. Suddenly, I was in terror lest I lose my legs.

But this was no time to have hysteria. I helped McCollom put ointment on my legs and feet. And then he bound them up as best he could.

The two men looked at me, dirty, disheveled—and no connection living or dead with those miraculous Hollywood heroines who go through fire, flood and shipwreck with water wave and chiffons undamaged.

"Maggie, you are certainly a sad sack!" Decker commented.

"Neither one of you is exactly a Van Johnson," I snapped. They were just as dirty and disheveled as I, and with four-day beards to boot.

"It's your turn now, Decker," McCollom said. We had nothing with which to sterilize or try to treat the angry gash on his forehead. We didn't even attempt it. But we knew his legs were burned, and once or twice he had complained because his pants stuck to his bottom.

McCollom now ordered Decker to take off his trousers and lie face down. What we saw horrified us both, and made us realize for the first time what pain Decker had been suffering in silence.

By some queer alchemy of fire, Decker's back had been badly burned in the inferno that followed the crash. But his clothing was not even scorched.

The sergeant's burns were shockingly gangrenous . . . It frightened me. I know McCollom was frightened, too.

But we didn't say anything as we went to work. It must have been agony for Decker to have us touch him. But I tried as best I could to clean the area and put ointment on it.

Decker, who was so good-natured, rebelled at only one thing. McCollom put a triangular bandage on him, like a diaper.

That momentarily broke the sergeant's spirit. But none of us felt like laughing. We were all silently worried, each trying not to let the other fellow know it. We were all wondering if the medics would reach us in time.

"You two had better lie down and keep still," McCollom ordered. We put up no arguments. We listened intently for the planes that would bring the medics back for their parachute jump into the valley.

But by 2 p. m., the daily blanket of thick white mist had closed in on the valley, shutting us away from the world as surely as if we had been in a steel vault.

We knew no plane could get into the valley that afternoon, and none did.

Decker could barely move by nightfall. I was too sick and weak to walk. For the next 72 hours, good, patient McCollom—himself on the verge of exhaustion—had to take care of me as if I were a baby. I was helpless and he was wonderfully kind and impersonal. And I never prayed so hard in my life.

A CHALLENGE

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY, the universally admired chairman of the special commission studying Governor Tobin's proposal for a State Department of Commerce, has expressed amazement at the extent to which some States have gone in holding their industries and the raids they are making on other States.

"About 65 per cent of the industrial plants in Massachusetts are working on war jobs," Mr. Kennedy says.

"In the transition period there will be a lot of people looking for work, and we all know the problem that this will cause.

"One of two things will happen—either the boys returning from the battlefronts cannot get jobs here if industries go elsewhere, or we can do something to meet the problem."

That is our patriotic obligation.

We must have laws which will encourage industry, not laws that will kill it.

We must have a fully up-to-date seaport and an air terminal capable of serving the biggest liners in the skies.

We must clarify the railroad situation and break the highway bottlenecks.

We must build for prosperity and shun anything and everything that tends to destroy it.

Our heroic sons in the armed forces have saved us, too often at the cost of their lives.

It is our job to save the mills and factories on which the home-coming survivors will depend for a livelihood.

GRAVE DANGER

TUBERCULOSIS is increasingly prevalent in Massachusetts, as it always has been during wars.

Dr. Alton S. Pope of the State Public Health Department reports that 319 cases were reported during June as compared with 220 cases during the same period last year.

The cause, he believes, is the strain of longer working hours. He exonerates food scarcities saying, "to date nutrition for the whole population has been fully equal to that of peace times."

Having seen the empty shelves and refrigerators in stores and meat markets, we cannot agree with the doctor.

But we do think, as he does, that every attempt should be made to discover tuberculosis wherever it exists and to treat it promptly.

HERE TO STAY

SPENDING of the $15,000,000 appropriated for the development of Logan International Airport in East Boston has begun with the Executive Council's approval of a $155,000 contract for a TEMPORARY building.

Simultaneously, another $25,000 will be invested in a TEMPORARY runway.

The two projects are necessary, undoubtedly.

But it would be infinitely more encouraging to hear that everything at this airport, the nation's nearest to the European continent, was going to be PERMANENT.

The age of the airplane is here TO STAY.

There is nothing transient about it.

Persons entrusted with public money should remember this and plan accordingly.

NEEDLESS LOSS

IT IS now estimated that highway damage from the recent floods in Berkshire County will exceed $200,000.

Crop losses are much greater, probably more than $2,000,000.

If the rivers which overflowed their banks had been properly harnessed for the generation of electricity, there would be no washed-out roads and no destroyed gardens.

Instead, all persons in the Berkshires would be able to heat their homes for a fraction of the present cost and would not have to worry about scarce coal and petroleum.

The water with which the whole New England area is so abundantly supplied should work for the people, not against them.

DR. JOHNSON made the above observation about 200 years ago. The advance in life expectancy has been great since then. The artificial aids to beauty and other means for keeping that school girl figure and complexion are greater in number. Right now the best age for a clever, intelligent woman is 35. A clever woman can keep her appeal until 50. A very clever woman until 60 . . . Ever ride from Washington sq., Manhattan, up Fifth ave. and then along Riverside Drive on top of a double-decked bus? Wonderful ride, what? Real New Yorkers love those double-decked buses. Same as San Franciscans love their ferries and cable cars. Without the two-decker buses New York would not be the same. Now some character connected with the bus company in an official capacity has the unmitigated crust to state: "The public prefers single-decker buses on Fifth ave." This ridiculous crack was made in connection with the movement to eliminate the two-decker buses. Hereby launched in this department is Bitter Campaign No. 9874A: to keep the two-decker buses on Fifth ave. This will be one of the bitterest campaigns in our history. It will be fought bitterly to the bitter end. My girl friend, whose hand I have held many a moonlight night on the top of a double-decker bus, is with me in this heart and soul. You'll be hearing from us.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Synd., Inc.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—In some recent blurts of perturbation about the decline of baseball among youth and the failure of the soulless corporations of the major leagues to do anything about it, I detect a sad and desperate admission that the game, itself, is outmoded.

Westbrook Pegler

I am as unhappy about this as Bill Corum, the sportswriter, and Babe Ruth, who recently joined him in a rather confused complaint against evolution but, as one who has seen the rise and fall of the street car, the family picnic and the phonograph, I lay no blame and accept change.

Baseball is a game that requires a coincidence of convenience, interest and facilities that is seldom possible these days. You must have at least a dozen boys for even a pick-up game.

For a real game at least 18 hands are required to do the playing and one to umpire and, actually, there should be a pinch hitter or reserve player or two of them on each side.

That means that this many kids must be able to bring themselves together at an appointed time and place, and most of us remember that our teams usually showed up short handed because the catcher's mother needed him to hang out the wash, or the first baseman had to get dressed up in his Sunday suit and go across town to visit his grandmother.

And often the contests were unevenly decided because someone absolutely had to be home for supper at six, or just at the start of the eighth inning, and so walked off, possibly taking with him the best glove, mitt or bat on his side or, worst of all, the ball.

WHEN I WAS writing sports, it took me a long time to admit to myself that tennis was a stout game, because when I was little it was played exclusively by the somewhat well-to-do, and in white pants at that, and because they would sing out that word "Love," which seemed inappropriate, not to say effeminate.

My respect for tennis was a grudging concession to the magnificent playing of Bill Tilden, whom I came to recognize as one of the greatest athletes that the world has ever seen, after I had watched him play more than two hours in that oven at Forest Hills and even bring along great opponents to the match point in championship play, apparently by deliberate intention, and then bat their ears off.

★ ★ ★

I DON'T SEE what the major league magnates could do about reviving baseball among the young or why they should do anything, except as a selfish, commercial project.

They didn't have to do anything to interest Bill Corum or the Babe or me in baseball when we were very young.

In our town we didn't even have a Class C team and the town ball club was supported by a hat collection taken about the seventh inning.

This money paid for the uniforms or suits as they were called, and bought a few balls and paid the expenses of the club from the next town, meaning, I suppose, a keg of beer and the hire of the local expressman's truck and team to bring them over and back.

It was customary in those unorganized relations to guarantee the visiting club from two to five dollars a man, and I believe the home club got about the same out of a kitty raised by the local merchants, to which the saloon-keepers were the best contributors as, indeed, they were to most worthy civic movements, from which, naturally, I exclude the W. C. T. U.

Thirty-five years ago, our sports pages, even in big cities, carried as a regular feature a column of challenges by clubs which rated themselves by age and, as a matter of pride, often specified that they would accept games only with "uniformed" teams.

We also printed hundreds of results on Mondays, some of which I am afraid were falsified by the amateur press representatives of teams which had not won but lost.

Often the games wound up in fights and every boy learned early that it was up to him to guard his own glove and to keep a sharp eye on his bat as the game drew to a close.

★ ★ ★

FRANKLY, baseball, love it though you may, is a complex game requiring more organization and enthusiasm than boys today are willing to give it.

To simplify it and get more action in a limited time, Father Edward Dowling, S. J., when he was in the seminary, invented a telescope version of three innings of nine outs per inning and that was an affectionate criticism.

Regular baseball dragged and they wanted to play all the ball they could in an hour, not waste precious minutes changing sides.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1—Hunt Stromberg, Jr., who is as independent as the Fourth of July, has borrowed Michael O'Shea from Stromberg, Sr., his dad, to star in "The Red Mill." "It was a strictly business deal," Hunt, Sr., assured me. "I'll bet it was," I answered, "with you doing a regular Shylock to get your pound of flesh." "No, honestly," he said, "I have a regular contract with Hunt, Jr., and Paula Stone and they are paying what everyone else pays."

Paula Stone

"The Red Mill" opens at the Biltmore Sept. 10, with O'Shea in the Fred Stone role. Then it goes East to Chicago and New York. It will be O'Shea's first time on Broadway since "The Eve of St. Mark." I wondered why O'Shea for a Fred Stone role until I was told he was originally a dancer and a singer.

COL. WILLIE WYLER, out of the Army after three years with the Air Force, goes right back to his old boss, Samuel Goldwyn. You expected it, didn't you? He and Sam always got along like Scotch and soda. So even if Willie has plans with Frank Capra, he will direct "Glory for Me," the MacKinlay Kantor novel. It starts in December with Robert E. Sherwood doing the script. Bob's here to write the film biography of Gen. Eisenhower, so he'll do the other job at the same time.

THE DAVID SELZNICK-ARTHUR RANK deal, so long rumored and now a fact, takes Selznick to London. He will personally produce his first British picture with Rank, and it's "The Scarlet Lily" which he bought from the Rev. Francis J Murphy for Ingrid Bergman and Joseph Cotten some time ago. It will be called "Mary Magdalene," and Selznick said today that he will make it both in England and in the Holy Land. He leaves in the early summer of next year. The deal was announced by cable from London by the Rank company, and is a business association with Selznick becoming a part of the Rank London organization.

THE PAUL DRAPER walkout of "Blue Skies," the Bing Crosby picture at Paramount, isn't as serious as at first reported. According to Henry Ginsberg, not very many scenes have been made and he said there was no trouble. Draper felt he was too inexperienced to have so important a role, which sounds a little corny to me since Draper is one of the finest dancers in the world and one of the most assured on the stage. However, Draper is out and Fred Astaire is in. Well, they can't lose with Fred Astaire, can they?

LONDON HAS MET up with Lauren Bacall and given her more attention than any star since this war. She has occupied the covers of most of the magazines, been discussed on the radio, been the topic for cartoonists, and had her movie with Bogey, "To Have and Have Not," screened for the King and Queen at Windsor Castle. She has been tagged "slinky, sultry and sensational." Moreover, her movie topped any other Warner opening by $2000.

"Well, who picked him because he was such a 'darling cute little caddy'?"

EVER NOTICE that Deanna Durbin, unlike most singing stars, never has a big singing hero as her leading man? Deanna usually does all the warbling in her movies, but there may be a change made if the good looking, 32-year-old Metropolitan singer, Richard Tucker, gets that contract at Universal. Tucker came to the Coast to replace John Charles Thomas on the air and several studios are very interested, particularly "U" and MGM. He has an interesting background. At one time he was a broker and then a cantor, and then an audition landed him suddenly at the Met.

CHIT-CHAT: Mrs. Walter Slezak's parents lived in Holland all during the war and have just learned she is married to the screen's cutie-pie "heavy." Naturally, they were anxious to see their son-in-law in a movie and have been waiting for one to be shown over there. The first to be released was "The Fallen Sparrow," in which Walter plays a 65-year-old man with a rubber face. Last week Mrs. Slezak received a shocked letter from the old people. "We have just seen our husband. What did you do to him? ... rich?" they wrote. "He looks ... rather ... dissolute."

It's cleaning up; Natalie Thompson and Bob Hutton have arranged their property settlement and will file for divorce next week. RUMORED BICKERINGS of Olson and Johnson boil down to a simple discussion between the two as to whether to accept a lot of additional bookings or take it easier; Margo and Eddie Albert deny it's marriage, but it is my private opinion that when the war is over they will discuss their future. He is in the Navy and she is in a Broadway play; the Clarence Hutsons gave one of the nicest parties of the year for General Fegan and Joe E. Brown. The General, back from the Fiji Islands, returns to Camp Pendleton this month. He is adored by all the Marines. Joe E. celebrated his birthday with a cake and all the trimmings. Mrs. Hutson's mother, Mrs. Sedgwick, and Irving Lowell be a great entertainment for a few months. Dorothy Lee Sedgwick, daughter, expects a baby. Mrs. Hutson was Ilene Sedgwick, a most attractive Ziegfeld Follies Beauty. Father Devlin, Bobe Dancer Co. Pat Dean and a score of others were at the party. John Dresbach returns from Denmark today. He'll have plans to tell. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—It may take days and days of severe labor pains for him to give birth to an idea, but Mr. Jack Doherty, one of my co-laborers in the journalistic vineyard — you should see us trampling out the gripes of wrath — always comes through in the end.

Winston Churchill

The other day, after what must have been hours of agonizing thought, he called and said he had the British political situation figured out at last.

"That is very sweet of you and the British unquestionably will be properly appreciative," I said. "What is this great conclusion you have come to?"

"It can all be summed up by paraphrasing the words of a famous statesman whom I think we should keep nameless," he said. "The British Empire has presided over the liquidation of Winston Churchill!"

HENRY B. MITCHELL is president of the United States Civil Service Commission. Hugh B. Mitchell is the junior Senator from Washington. Recently the two Mitchells have been in earnest correspondence.

Senator Mitchell began the orgy of letter-writing in his capacity as chairman of the Mead Committee's sub-committee investigating charges of faulty inspection methods at the Curtiss-Wright airplane plant in Buffalo. It seems Senator Mitchell wished to know what could be done about disciplining civil service employes found guilty of incompetence and dereliction.

Civil Service President Mitchell replied that he could think of one fairly good corrective method—fire them. The correspondence went back and forth hot and heavy.

Each was extremely punctilious, however. Senator Mitchell addressed the Civil Service head as, "Dear Mr. President Mitchell" and the latter addressed the solon as "Dear Senator Mitchell."

From the letters you would never have guessed one irrelevant little detail—the Mitchells happen to be father and son!

Civil Service Mitchell is the Senator's old man.

THERE IS a Navy lieutenant now under assignment here named Robert Taylor. I understand, however, that he is not a lifelong seafaring man but has another line of work in peacetime—the movies.

It seems this Lt. Taylor, who is married to a lady in the films — now let me see, it's either Helen Gahagan Douglas or Barbara Stanwyck—is a fairly good-looking type. In fact, they say he is one of the handsomest Barnacle Bills to ever stand abatt the binnacle.

The grizzled old salt—his wife, I have just ascertained, is Barbara Stanwyck, Helen Gahagen Douglas is married to Justice Frankfurter — has been going about quite a bit evenings since coming to Washington. This is understandable; he likes to watch the ships maneuvering in the tidal basin.

However, he is beginning to feel haunted. Wherever he goes he is pursued by a good-looking blonde.

(Note: I have just been corrected again. Mrs. Douglas is not married to Justice Frankfurter. Neither is Miss Stanwyck. I wonder whom Justice Frankfurter is married to?)

Anyway, Lt. Taylor first noticed the blonde ogling him in the lobby of a hotel. Before he could dodge behind a potted palm she came up and asked him to take her to dinner.

Although she made it definitely clear she would lift the check, Lt. Taylor declined. What's the matter with him?

The sea-going movie idol fled the premises accompanied by a character named Vincent X. Flaherty. This Flaherty, incidentally, never flees good-looking blondes if left to his own. He was just imitating Taylor.

They got a taxi—but soon discovered they were being trailed by the blonde. Imagine ditching a blonde with taxi fare!

From then on the chase continued nightly. Wherever Taylor went the blonde was hot on his heels. His heels, by the way, include a couple of other guys in addition to Flaherty.

The other night the chase was on again. Finally the taxi containing the huntress pulled in ahead of Taylor's hack, forcing it to the curb. The blonde leaned out the window waving a huge wad of bills.

Taylor was just as unimpressed with the money as he was by the blonde. Don't you think maybe our movie heroes are inclined to be spoiled?

★ ★ ★

NEXT EVENING Taylor and Flaherty went to Herb Sach's Del Rio. They made up their minds to go on the spur of the moment but—eerily—the blonde was waiting in the entrance.

Taylor practically flung himself past her. Flaherty—after a lingering and regretful look—did the same.

About an hour later, while the floor show was on, the blonde rushed over to Taylor's table and tossed him an expensive ruby ring. Taylor tried to make her take it back; in fact, he followed her all the way across the night club pleading with her to accept it.

The blonde refused to take the ring; kept insisting that it was Taylor's. Finally the headwaiter informed her she'd have to take back the bauble and no more monkey business. She proceeded to get tough—and ended up by getting thrown out.

Being in the movies must be pleasant work. Do you suppose that some time when she feels she needs the exercise, that blonde would care to chase me?

Boston After Dark

PREDICTION: V-J DAY will be celebrated before Labor Day, and the unconditional surrender terms handed the Japs by the Potsdam conference will be accepted with no more than nominal demurring on the part of the Japanese government . . . This is the forecast of a man high in our Government whose position steadfastly has been on the side of utmost preparation for a long war in the Pacific . . . It was made privately to this column with a request only that the name of the authority be withheld . . . We forward it for what it may be worth.

AS HANDSOME AS EVER and in perfect voice and physical condition, Harry Richman, the unique troubadour who stands alone in his class, has made late July resemble a New Year's Week at the Bradford Roof . . . The now-lovely spot overlooking Boston's theatrical district is swarming with customers . . . With a powerful assist from Jacques Renard, the maestro who rates that description, Mr. Richman is proving the truth of the late George M. Cohan's theory that "there is no off-season for a good show" . . . A "good show" is what a few million admirers of the suave Harry have come to expect when the billing spells out his name . . . As heretofore they get it this time, too . . . Booked at the huge salary of $3000 a week, the Richman character is a silk-hatted proof of another adage—that money begets more of the same.

★ ★ ★

HE IS WORTH every penny of his wages including the $300 which goes to his agent, the $300 which goes to his pianist, and the $900-plus which Secretary of the Treasury Vinson will get next March in trust as Harry's contribution to the war effort—because he is drawing thrice that amount to the Roof . . . But what's money? . . . There comes a gleam in the Richman eye when the spotlight hits his cocoa-brown face . . . He struts, he sways, he swaggers, he sings . . . And how he sings! And how selectively he sings.

★ ★ ★

IT'S ONLY SUREFIRE stuff which features the Richman repertory this current appearance . . . Last time here, he was talked into being diverted into too much "acting" . . . A takeoff of Frank Sinatra fell a bit flat that last appearance, which took place at the neighboring Latin Quarter . . . And Harry went in for too much talk . . . The Richman showmanship has re-asserted itself after that excusable dereliction.

★ ★ ★

THERE WAS a reason for that earlier digression . . . Harry was in there pitching with a fearsome apprehension that his famous pipes had gone squeaky . . . People had told him so . . . A critic or two had hinted as much . . . This particular corner detected no real variation from the great Richman who ruled his roost back in the days when George White was producing his "Scandals" with the weighty collateral that Richman was on hand to sing such songs as "Birth of the Blues" . . . But artists are sensitized instruments.

THE WHAMMIES held Mr. Richman in their grip on that previous Boston engagement . . . He presented an impeccable front and the customary Richman assurance . . . But the Joe Glooms had had him worried . . . He can forget those trying weeks now . . . Harry is no less than great . . . He shouldn't be missed . . . No one in the business of entertaining cafe customers has the Richman personality, the Richman voice, the Richman "con," the Richman knowledge of what the customers will love.

AT THE NEARBY MAYFAIR—which like the Bradford Roof was jampacked on a Tuesday night—a cute little native Bostonian is headlined . . . She is Edith Fellows, the quondam "brat" of such fillums as "Pennies From Heaven" and "She Married Her Boss" . . . Edith was born in Roxbury, but a loving and smart grandmother transported her to Hollywood when she was just four . . . By that time, Edith could dance like a little sprite . . . For 18 years the child held forth in Hollywood, making a good living out of the grind . . . Now she is capitalizing on her vast film experience and on a fine, trained voice . . . The girl—she is 22—has the customers coming back for repeat auditions . . . The strange part of her local appearance is that she doesn't dance.

EVEN in these hot days, fashion-minded women are already looking toward fall . . . and the dramatic daring of the new-season fashions. Here is a Cossack coat originated by Adrian for Universal star Deanna Durbin that is stunning and startling. It is of black wool with black silk cording . . . and frogs denoting the Cossack fastening. A black velvet collar trims the neckline . . . high, you'll note, in accordance with the new style dictates. But the beret, a John Frederics inspiration, is of bright red felt with black satin ribbon trimming. —R. M.

WHENEVER WE THINK of the wondrous drama of mascara and beautiful eyes . . . we always think of a gloriously beautiful, raven-haired young cosmetician in town . . . the confidence she imparted to us . . . and then we chuckle over the story. It's that good . . . and many a girl should please take note.

My young friend has cup-and-saucer eyes . . . or that's the illusion created by her deft use of mascara . . . with lashes that curl up and out to THERE! Naturally she has a boy friend . . . a fighting stalwart who some day will make her his for keeps.

He thinks she has the most gorgeous eyes in all the world . . . and she has. BUT, he doesn't know how she achieves such eye glamor and devastating allure . . . and she has never told him. Well, one day . . . they discussed mascara . . . she hinting around for his viewpoint on the employment of such an artifice.

"Don't you ever use it," he chided her, "you've got such beautiful eyes, you'll spoil them."

Well, my young friend gulped, swallowed her own saliva, took a deep breath and let it pass. "He should know," she whispered to me, "he should know that I wouldn't have any eyes if I dodn't use mascara." Then, we both laughed. What men don't kno v will never hurt them . . . and since it is the finished picture they like to gaze upon . . . why disillusion them?

Getting back to the subject at hand . . . eyes . . . it's lots of fun playing artist with your lashes. Try and see how a touch of mascara will enhance your eyes . . . bring out their depth and lustre . . . express feminine artifices with boldness and captivation. Of course, if your experience with mascara has been an unkind one . . . if you've never been able to get that smooth sheen of curled-up beauty to the lashes . . . then you've never tried this supreme achievement in eye make-up . . . a new waterproof mascara that slides out of a tube onto a tiny whiff of feather and then evenly to your lashes.

This is a silky-cream mascara . . . made of fine adherent oils . . . that is smudge-proof, waterproof and even weather-proof. You can wear it in the rain . . . in the wind . . . and even in a blizzard . . . and your lashes will still be as dark and lovely as when you first brushed it on . . . and you'll perhaps look as intriguingly lovely as my beautiful young friend.

You need no water to moisten the bit of color before applying to the lashes. This cream mascara comes out of a tube and taken up by the feather-brush . . . can be directly applied to the lashes. You can get it in black, brown or blue.

For the name of this weather-proof cream mascara, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write to me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosa stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GIVING YOUR eyes fascination . . . the subtle kind that creates that wide-eyed look staring out from between curled up lashes of long, baffling darkness . . . can come only from the deft use of a waterproof, smudge-proof cream mascara . . . easy to apply and a certain harbinger of eye glamor. Linda Darnell, 20th Century starlet, doesn't pass up the opportunity for enhancing eye charm.

Plans Ahead For Dates

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I'm a girl of 18 and my boy friends have always been the least of my troubles. The last one I had was 21 and in the Merchant Marine. He was attending one of their schools studying radio, but he always became angry if I accepted dates from other boys. But that didn't stop me. He thought enough of me to accept my behavior.

Sometimes he'd keep his word and call up when he said he would, and the again he'd come when he wasn't invited. One of these times I'd already made plans for the evening, and, of course, he was disappointed. He left in a hurry and said he didn't want to see me any more. I told him I didn't care, because I m the type of girl who wants to plan ahead for dates.

This is my last year in high school, and I expect to go on to college and don't care to get serious with any boy.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR.

Your independence about dates is so refreshing that I'm not going to dwell on my sympathy for the young man with whom, it seems to me, you were a trifle short. But your system works!

So many girls write me tearful letters about waiting around for the date-breaker who never comes, that it's highly interesting to see what magic a little spirit brings forth.

Retain its Charm

BOUQUET is a delightful word, charming in sound, charming in its meaning. But how often it's mistreated, both in spelling and in pronunciation! So often it's spelled boquet. And so often it's pronounced bo-quet (bo- to rhyme with go). And I suspect that most of the people who spell it bo-quet pronounce it as they spell it, bo-quet! It should be pronounced boo-kay.

Peach Crumble Pie Tops

By MARTHA LEE

PEACHES ARE ALWAYS good news. Homemakers will find them particularly useful in desserts. Because of their natural sugar, less sugar will be needed in their preparation. Peaches may be served raw, cooked and baked, either alone or in combination with cereals, puddings, gelatines, and other fruits. They may be served also with the main dish of the meal, in salads, or with cheeses to very good advantage.

Plump juicy peaches are at their most elegant best in Peach Crumble Pie. The pleasing combination of sweet peach flavor touched with a bit of tangy lemon juice in a velvety smooth sauce, a melting sugar crumble topping, and a flaky golden brown crust all go toward making this a de luxe summertime dessert. This one-crust pie takes only 1-3 cup shortening to serve 6 generously.

PEACH CRUMBLE PIE

1 cup sifted enriched flour
½ tsp. salt
1-3 cup shortening
2 to 3 tbsp. cold water

Sift together flour and salt. Cut or rub in shortening. Add water. Mix to a dry, crumbly dough. Toss on lightly floured pastry cloth. Roll and fold until smooth. Roll about ⅛-inch thick. Line one 9-inch pie pan. Fill with peach filling.

PEACH FILLING

½ cup sugar
2 tbsp. cornstarch
½ cup corn syrup
½ tsp. salt ¼ cup water
1 tbsp. lemon juice
4 cups sliced fresh peaches

Combine sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Add water and corn syrup. Blend well. Add peaches. Bring to a boil and cook 1 minute. Let cool. Add lemon juice. Pour filling into pastry-lined pie pan. Sprinkle with crumble topping.

CRUMBLE TOPPING

6 tbsp. sugar
¼ cup enriched flour
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 tsp. grated lemon rind

Mix sugar and flour. Cut or rub in margarine or butter. Add lemon rind. Sprinkle topping over peaches. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 30 to 40 minutes. Makes one 9-inch pie.

(Note: If a sweeter pie is desired, add 1 cup sugar in place of ½ cup sugar and ¼ cup corn syrup. Increase water to ½ cup.)

Serve Peach Crumble Pie plain, or for extra special events, top each piece with a liberal scoop of vanilla ice cream. Iced lemonade or cups of piping hot spiced tea both go well with this favorite desert

Peach Puff Pudding is a light bread pudding made delicious as well as nutritious with its good share of enriched bread, milk, eggs, honey, and peaches. A bit of grated orange rind adds a tangy touch. Only 1 cup of diced peaches is needed to give these puff puddings their peachy flavor.

PEACH PUFF PUDDING

1½ cups milk
1½ cups enriched bread cubes
1½ tbsp. melted butter or margarine
1 egg, beaten
⅓ cup honey
⅛ tsp. salt
1½ tsp. grated orange rind
1 cup diced peaches

Scald milk and pour over bread cubes. Let stand 10 minutes. Add melted butter or margarine, egg, honey, salt, and peaches. Mix well. Pour into individual greased casseroles. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 45 minutes. Serve with milk or coffee cream. Makes 4 puddings.

Fur Coat Sleeves Will Be Bigger

By BETTINA BEDWELL

SOME of us thought that the sleeve inflation we witnessed in fur coats last season was all there would be, but this season's coats prove how wrong we were. Fur coats have sleeves that are bigger than ever.

The big thing in sleeves (no pun) this fall will be the balloon sleeve, and you can see what it looks like by consulting our sketch. Esther Dorothy was the original inventor of this sleeve, last season, and now it's a very important general fashion. She also again is using such sleeves, and this is one of her new coats.

Made of black Persian lamb this coat is a tunic coat with truly gigantic balloon sleeves. The waistline is fitted and belted and there is no collar to speak of. Miss Dorothy designed the little black Persian-lamb topknot that is worn in the hair. She makes them to match her fall coats.

Home Canning Demonstration

Procedures in home canning were demonstrated today at the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser garden on Boston Common by Mrs. Ruth Gould Shufelt, home demonstratoin agent of the Norfolk Country Agricultural School.

Mrs. Shuflet will repeat the demonstration at 7 p. m., using vegetables grown in the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser garden under supervision of Foster H. Weiss, head of the vegetable gardening department of the school.

Similar demonstrations will be held Aug. 15 at the same hours.

The canning demonstrations have been prompted by dire warnings from farm and fruit produce officials that the extent of the crop to be packed this year for next winter's consumption will be 25 per cent less generally and in respect to tomatoes probably 50 per cent under the quantity hitherto available.

Mrs. Shufelt pointed out that by canning fruits and vegetables at home, housewives have some measure of protection from the unbalanced diet that a shortage of commercially canned products may cause.

Ole Tess Comes Home to Realize An Old Dream

By AUSTEN LAKE

WELL, HEMSTITCH MY SNUGGIES! Ole Tess is getting hitched to Virgie King! That's Captain Adrien Tessier of the Fourth Armor—the ex-cake salesman for Hathaway in Providence; the guy who used to chew iron filings and spit sparks. Tess gave orders that stung like the smack of a wet fish. But he had a heart that dripped sympathy like a pyrex percolator.

Austen Lake

Ole Tess is one of my favorite characters out of this war. I was with him a few hours before Kraut shrapnel filled his shoulder fuller of holes than a kitchen skimmer. I can still recall that hazy afternoon amid the horticultural hillsides where the apple blossoms made the foliage look like little maids in communion dress and every bush, hummock and forest held morbid menace. It was country where German SS troopers, trigger-itchy fanatics who believed in the divinity of Hitler's Reichpolitik, lurked like condemned souls and shot at us from ambush. It was a borrowed world where the past was so much spilled hour-glass sand, the future an unsecured promise and only today was real.

He Was Hung With Horseshoes

OLE TESS USED TO SAY HE was hung with horseshoes, yet in every action he'd murmur, "Maybe this is it." But up to that mid-April day he led a charmed life. There was that time, a few days before he was punctured, when we lounged in a field beside the burning town of Dornburg in East Thuringia. When I say "burning" I don't just mean pinpoints of scattered fire. I mean furnaces which devoured century-old timbers like dry corn stalks. Flames licked hungrily up the church steeple while it tilted slowly and finally crashed. A bronze weather cock was last to disappear in the smoke. Odd how such trivialities survive in memory's miasma.

So I'd left Tess to watch our combat engineers finish the last spans of a pontoon bridge and I guess I fell asleep on the grassy bank. Because the next thing I recalled was the raucous, crescendo snort of diving planes—the unforgettable "eeeEEEyowwwWOW" when dive bombers plunge steeply at their target. Action is instinctive at such times and I galloped away from that bridge as fast as my old football knee would allow.

But they weren't German planes. They were OUR planes. And they didn't bomb the bridge. They bombed the positions where Ole Tess's infantry were. You didn't hear much about such things, did you? No, because the censors were pretty touchy where we occasionally killed our own guys and they were prompt to clip such portions of your copy.

That wasn't the only time I saw Americans killed by Americans. There was that day at Ochtendung, near the Rhine when the 11th Armor, churning along our left flank, fired a few investigative rounds into the town under the misapprehension that it was German held. The 11th General apologized to Col. Creighton Abrams later. But it killed one soldier and wounded another. Still in the hurly-burly of attack, the Army couldn't always correlate. It was just tough turkey!

Anyhow that day Tess had just emerged from a latrine when one of our bombs obliterated the spot. But not Tess. Stuff like that! And once he was blown out of his jeep and had his driver killed. But Tess wound up round a corner, blotto from concussion. O he was tough all right! He'd had a hundred such escapes!

Like that time near the town of Weisenthurm when I watched him blast a German supply column at zero range, as soul-shocking a scene of carnage as I ever witnessed. Tess was giving me a travelogue lecture at an advance infantry post in a water ditch while behind us his tank crews were busy with their housework, cleaning gun bores, stacking ammo, adjusting gear.

Suddenly under our levelled binoculars a German supply column began rolling out, mooching along a scant 1200 meters away. "Holy Cow," said Tess in the voice of a man who had just fallen heir to a rich uncle's fortune. "Clear those guns," he shouted, then, "Hold fire. Let 'em spread out."

THROUGH MY GLASSES I COULD see some officers in the lead staff car bent over what looked like maps. Even the figures of the German soldiers were in clear outlines. Tess crouched with his arm aloft. "NOW, he yelled, "Now, let 'em have it." And the gunners did! The din of our 75's and 50-calibres numbed the senses. Shells burst along the line in incandescent flashes. Dark blobs sailed lazily from puffs of smoke. Tracer bullets whizzed in small orange balls. The head of the column was hidden behind a milky veil.

Horses broke their traces and galloped widly across fields, some dragging overturned wagons. Soldiers scuttled for any cover. Trucks tumbled over an embankment as hysterical drivers tried to wheel out of line. Flames licked rosily at others, funnelling smoke toward gray skies. It was all over in 10 minutes and the ensuing silence seemed an aching void. "This is it," muttered Tess as German batteries hidden beyond the town opened on our positions.

To me it was catastrophic, but to Ole Tess it was just a routine chore. And afterward we went into a village gasthaus and ordered some beer. As we sat there Tess hauled out a leather bound photo of a very sugar-pussed girl and said: "If I ever get home I'm going to marry her." And that was Virginia Mae King of Providence. So as Tess sipped his brew he chatted absently about the dreams he conjured up—a colonial cottage under the arching elms, lamplight in the evening and maybe some small, peering faces.

To me it seemed incongruous that a man who had just directed such ruin and havoc could so abruptly divert his mind to gentle channels. And I remember Tess had sighed: "But that's a long way off." It seemed so at the moment. But here it is! A neatly engraved announcement reading: "Virginia Mae King to Capt. Adrien Tessier, St. Anthony's Church, Aug. 11." Tess still carries a mutilated arm in a sling. But somehow he'll manage to slip the golden band over the proper finger. Yeh! This is it, Tess!

Hunting Regulations Wait Truman Return

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP)—The annual water fowl hunting regulations, usually issued in July, have been delayed because of President Truman's absence from the country.

The regulations, which must have the signature of the Chief Executive, have been flown to Potsdam, the Fish and Wild Life Service said yesterday. Officials expect to announce this season's rules early in August.

Loss Burns Ferriss; Yankees Praise Him

By HUCK FINNEGAN

In football when you're losing you're "building character." And so it seemed in baseball after Dave Ferriss' 4-2 extra-inning defeat by the Yankees in Tuesday's game at Fenway (22,477 paid—best midweek crowd since Speaker).

"First time I worked behind him," said plate umpire Art Passarella. "Great boy and a great pitcher. I've seen a lot of them but he's a prewar and postwar winner."

"I've worked behind him four times, and on bases three times," said Ump Ernie Stewart. "Take 150 pitches a game and multiply it by seven, yet I've never heard the kid ask for anything. I thought Ruffing was tops in that respect, but Ferriss is the best ever."

Bud Metheny: Best I ever saw him.

Herschel Martin: Smart. Knows where he's throwing every pitch. Made me look like a sucker on that slow curve in the seventh.

Nick Etten: He'll win anywhere, anytime.

Yeh, they all speak well of Ferriss, who doesn't drink, smoke or chew.

Ferriss, who builds character among the younger generation of autograph seekers, wasn't pleased by the encomiums.

"I lost again, didn't I?" he scowled, and there was no doubt about it. He had lost. The score was 4-2, and he was licked in the 10th inning. Licked after a couple of bad breaks when he should have won over the regulation route.

There was the two-run first inning when Skeeter Newsome hit into a double play with three men aboard. And the fourth when Newsome's error let Grimes score. And the ninth with the score still 2-2 when Ferriss himself was on second and Bucher on first and Metkovich's single hit pitcher Dubiel on the rump to deflect it so that Metko was thrown out at first. It looked like a sure-fire single to center to score Ferriss with the winning run.

This was the first time in Ferriss' short major league career he had lost two in a row, and the third in four starts he had dropped against the Yanks. He didn't like it.

There was no more of that "I've won some close ones; I'll lose some." There was nothing but clenched teeth. The boy from Shaw, Miss., was mad.

★ ★ ★

Ferriss had gone 17 for 0 when he singled in the second. When he singled in the ninth it looked like a Frank Merriwell finish. Burt L. Standish didn't write the script . . . Tuck Stainback attributed his four hits to the fact that "Fletch has been playing me steadily." Stainback hit Ferriss like a "cousin."

"And to think a left field hitter would hit me to right," sighed Ferriss after Stainback's winning single . . . "Lucky Ferriss," St. Louis fans yelled after the Sox gave him a five-run ninth inning. "I'd rather be lucky than good," Ferriss retorted. He's got to have more luck than ability if the Sox don't hit better behind him . . . Even Johnson went hitless.

Borowy's 2-B Rating Under Probe in N. J.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 1 (AP)—Lt. Col. Paul E. Schwehm, executive officer at State Selective Service headquarters, said today the draft classification of Hank Borowy of Bloomfield, major league baseball pitching star, was being investigated. Schwehm said the investigation was "routine and not unusual." He said it would be completed in a day or two.

Schwehm said Borowy, who was traded to the Cubs by the Yankees last week, now has a 2-B classification given to him by Bloomfield Board No. 6 while he was employed at the Eastern Tool and Manufacturing Company, Bloomfield, last winter.

Borowy, who is listed as being 27 years old in baseball records, left the employ of the Bloomfield concern in March to enter spring training with the Yankees.

Schwehm said the question has been raised by selective service officials as to whether Borowy was still entitled to a 2-B classification.

Borowy is married and has one child. He won his initial start as a Cub hurler on Monday.

$250,000 Suffolk Goal For Charity Race Days

By JACK CONWAY

SUFFOLK DOWNS expects to raise $250,000 for war and peace charities during the last four days of its meeting, Aug. 8 through Aug. 11, according to Treasurer Edward F. Goode. These four days of the 54-day meeting will be conducted under the National War Fund with the full co-operation of the management of the East Boston track.

The Community Fund, Red Cross, Archbishop Richard J. Cushing's Charity Fund and the Disabled Veterans Funds of the American-Record-Sunday Advertiser will participate in the profits of the four days of racing. Dennis Delaney, head of the local division of the Internal Revenue, notified Edward F. Goode that the Treasury Department had given its full approval to the charity days.

Edw. F. Goode

The $25,000 Mayflower Stakes on Aug. 8 and the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap on Aug. 11 will be held during the charity program. As the Massachusetts Handicap for the first time in the history of Suffolk Downs will be held on a Saturday, which also happens to be the closing day of 1945 racing on Massachusetts mile tracks, it is expected that a new record will be established for attendance and mutuel handle.

As in former years, Pres. Allan J. Wilson says that none of the real estate charges will be placed against the charity days. They will be assumed by the track. The cost of purses and regular operating expenses will be the only charges.

The daily average handle at Suffolk Downs is well above the million dollar mark, and, with two big races scheduled, the last four days of the meeting under National War Fund auspices should establish new highs. The charity days are subject to the approval of the Racing Commission. This approval is expected today.

★ ★ ★

MIKE KELLEHER, head of the Community Fund, declared that if the racing ban had not been lifted this year that the organizations represented by his group would have suffered greatly. The Community Fund will share in the extra nights of dog racing at Wonderland Park as well as in the charity days at Suffolk Downs.

The money that the Disabled Veterans Fund receives from the charity days at Suffolk Downs, will go to make life more comfortable for service men who have given so much to their country. The Disabled Veterans Fund has made direct cash gifts to veterans and has also paid for telephone calls to their homes.

The telephone service has been very popular with men returning from overseas and taken to New England hospitals. Portable telephones are moved to the side of their beds, if they are unable to go to the regular telephone rooms, and special operators care for their calls. The full expense for this service has been paid by the Disabled Veterans Fund.

There is not a single salary charge of any nature against the Disabled Veterans Fund. All of the executive and other work is done by regular employes of these newspapers without any compensation. Each has felt it a special privilege to do something for our disabled veterans.

Sports leaders and the public have been generous in aiding the fund. This is why the fund has been able to do such effective work.

★ ★ ★

SUFFOLK Downs has given $975,000 to various charity funds over the years. All of the charities that have shared in this money has been properly organized, to do war and peace work, and have the approval of the Treasury Department.

Next week's effort will swell the total to over $1,200,000.

Schedule Gives Cubs Edge in Flag Race

CHICAGO, Aug. 1 (AP)—The supercharged Chicago Cubs, who have "Borowy'd" new strength, appear favored by the schedule-makers to head the National League parade the remaining two months of the season.

The Bruins wind up one of their most successful home stands in several years today and tomorrow against the Pittsburgh Pirates, but a 21-game road trip they begin Friday should cause them no worry.

The jaunt pits them against the Cincinnati Reds whom they have trimmed 13 times in 13 starts this season, and Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and New York who contributed 13 victories in 16 starts to the Cubs on their last Eastern swing.

Aided by Hank Borowy, whose acquisition from the New York Yankees continues to mystify and rankle the rest of the majors, the Cubs would have to do an unexpected tail-spin to dissipate their current six-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers.

The world champion Red Birds, incidentally, don't come to grips with the Cubs until Aug. 24 when they invade Wrigley Field for a three-game series. Whatever the pennant scramble may resemble then, the Cubs still will have an excellent chance to make championship hay in the season-closing month of September.

In the final month, the Cubs play 25 of their 32 scheduled contets at home, including four games with the Dodgers, Sept. 15 through 17, and a pair with the Cardinals, Sept. 25 and 26.

On the basis of Cub pennant history, Manager Charley Grimm's current club seem destined to grab the championship. When the Bruins last won the bunting in 1938 they were eight full games out of first place at this stage.

In 1935, when the Cubs previously copped, they were 2½ games off the pace at the corresponding juncture and in 1932, another championship year, they were 3½ games behind.

Braves Break Ice Under Bissonette

By BILL GRIMES

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—"Now that we have broken that losing streak," prophesied Manager Del Bissonette today, "I expect the club to get rolling again and win some ball games."

"After winding up this series with the Giants tonight," continued Del, "we will return home for a long stay. On Friday, we open a six-game series with the Dodgers, starting with a double-header.

On Saturday, we'll finish that suspended game before going into the regular one. Because of the Sunday baseball law, we were obliged to call the second game of June 17th in Brooklyn's half of the 8th with one down and Rosen on second and the Braves leading 4 to 1.

"Do not be surprised if Mort Cooper finishes that game. But, if we win it, the victory will be credited to Bob Logan, who started. Then, on Sunday, there will be another twin bill with the Dodgers. Monday, we'll play off another postponement with the Brooks.

"After a Tuesday layoff, the Braves will take on the Western club, the Cubs, Pirates, Reds and Cardinals in that order. Then we take a two-day respite before a three-day visit with the Phillies."

Manager Bissonette will send Nate Andrews after the final game with the Giants tonight. Since he beat the Cubs in Chicago, Andrews hasn't been too impressive. He lost a 3 to 2 decision to Red Barrett in St. Louis and then the Pirates bunched three hits, including three-run, game winning home-run by Johnny Barrett in the fourth frame. Two days later, he failed again, this time as a relief pitcher, for he was such a soft touch for the Pirates that they wiped out the Braves' four-run lead in the eighth and ninth rounds and then went on to win in the eleventh.

Andrews' last appearance on the mound was in Brooklyn last Sunday. In three innings he gave up four runs and as many hits and had to be relieved by Ed Wright. Andrews' record for the season is six wins against 10 defeats.

The Braves finally broke their losing streak yesterday, after suffering 10 straight setbacks, winning the nightcap, 9-4, after dropping the first, 4 to 3.
